"Darkly atmospheric... sharp performances... sudden bursts of physicality and beautiful live piano music." The Scotsman

An idealist leaves his home to fight for a cause in which he passionately believes. Arriving near the front line he finds in the ruins the hope that will eventually destroy him. An international brigade of angelic fighters sing and dance their tales of revolution. With them he arrives in the moment where the pursuit of an ideal requires the action of killing. Inspired by images of civil war, rebellion and loss; "Queen of the Slaughter" won an Argus Angel at the Brighton Festival Fringe.
